۴	Passage (3) The value of reading about successful people's life is great. Knowing about their failures and successes will teach us how to develop our ideas in our life without feeling weak or giving up. For example, Edison did seven hundred experiments to invent light bulbs. He said, " I tried seven hundred times and never thought about failure." Or Albert Einstein couldn't talk when he was four years old and when he went to school he had problems in reading books but now we know him as the father of physics. J.K Rowling, the writer of Harry Potter books, wrote these stories when she was really poor and had no money to take care of her child and make her grow up. She tried to publish her books twelve times. And she never thought that a day she could be one of the richest writers. And you may watch Steven Spielberg's movies on TV. He is very rich. He tried to go to university three times. But he was not successful. He started again after thirty-five years and he became successful. So we can't be successful easily. We must try hard and never give up. These stories will help us to develop our ideas without feeling weak. 57. All of these famous people in this text ..... .  a) were poor when they were not famous    b) tried many times to help other people  c) never gave up to develop their ideas    d) knew that they will be successful and rich  60. Who became successful and rich after really long years?  a) Einstein                                  b) Spielberg                                c) Rowling                                    d) Edison  61. In the last line "develop" means ..... .  a) make better                              b) make rich                                c) make successful                         d) make weak  62. Rowling tried to publish her books ten times    True <input type="checkbox"/>                                  False <input type="checkbox"/>  63.
